Direct Human Engagement

Direct Human Engagement is one of the oldest forms of marketing. Human Engagement has been around for centuries. It was the first method of marketing that companies had to use in order to be successful. Human Engagement relies on the company having a personal relationship with their customer. No matter how advanced technology we get in society, Relationships between Humans will always be the foundation. Direct Human Engagement uses the human to human interaction method to increase sales & company exposure in the local market.
